

@everyone Hello evryone. The events of the last month have forced me to make the following decision: This server is the target of constant aggression by HPL Crew leaders trying to destabilize this server, to terrorizing its members and running annoying campaigns on HPL Crew to influence other members of its server, and turn their opinion against the Community Center. These events also resulted in HPL Crew to leaving this server of several members. From the beginning, I presented new server Community Center as a peaceful and friendly place, but the constant aggressive behavior of the peoples from HPL Crew forces me to partially reconsider my opinion. I decided on a compromise solution: A special channel will be set up in the Off-Topic section called La Bruta dramas, which will deal exclusively with this issue and will try to analyze it with the maximum degree of objectivity. Feedback is welcome, but not absolutely required. I urge everyone who would have difficulty with these matters and feel uncomfortable to mute this channel and not take its existence into account. In addition to this channel, please do not discuss these issues in other channels so that other members of the community do not feel uncomfortable.. If the discussion of server members on this channel take on a personal level, please these members to move to private conversation. The basic rule, which is that personal conflicts between members of this server are not allowed, doesn't change. ~ Swankest CZ

Ok, here is first 4 chapters of my confessions that discuss the beginnings of the HPL crisis and also what preceded it.

Chapter 1 - Idyllic beginning Sometime in early 2020, I had the opportunity to meet Sabatu, who was finishing his Oghma Infinium mod at the time, and which I was translating into Czech, without realizing at the time that the author was a man of the same nationality. We talked and Sabatu told me about his new project called Sanguis, which he will going to create in near future. I participated in the realization of Sabatu's mod. This was followed by several other mods whose names are well known to the community. Our cooperation was relatively calm. We were always able to negotiate and we seldom had any arguments. We both realized that we were not the same personality and that there were occasional disagreements here, but we always tried to resolve such matters on both sides diplomatically, in the most sensible way possible. Over time, we have become good friends. The Sabatu has become accustomed to the fact that I don't like it when someone intervenes in my texts without my knowledge, and I am used to the fact that sometimes he lies and behaves hypocritically. Sometime in early 2021, I received a message on moddb from the then unknown headlesscyborg, who wrote to me about his mod The Affect and his translation into Czech. We wrote to each other more often and eventually found that we understood each other quite well. We created a small communication group on Discord, which Sabatu also joined. Sabatu and headlesscyborg discovered that they had known each other for a long time, because they had once worked together on a project for Amnesia. Headlesscyborg was finishing his unconventional Obscurum mod at the time, and I offered him help with texts, which he accepted.

Chapter 2 - Creating an HPL Crew After some time, headlesscyborg suggested that we set up a new Discord server together. It happened shortly after the big incident on Chaos Crew, which resulted in Spelos leaving this server and which we weren't participating in. Our new server was primarily intended for Czech and Slovak fans. That's when I started working on developing the community that became the basis of today's community at HPL Crew. First, I invited about 10 of my Czech and Slovak YouTube subscribers to the server, including Crimson, Joseq and Cibule. After a while, I invited our friend CustomStoryGatherers and then TrollForce to the server. However, their membership was initially rather symbolic, because Czech continued to predominate on the server as the primary language.

Chapter 3 - Internationalization of HPL Crew until the beginning of Karel's crisis After a while, I suggested inviting other players from the community to the server. Sabatu was absolutely not interested in the development of the community, he was only interested in the creation of mods and he communicated mostly only with Czechs and Slovaks, and headlesscyborg didn't care either. However, I appreciate that headlesscyborg tried to meet my needs and built the group from a technical point of view. Sabatu was mostly only interested in creating channels in the group. He often created such channels and voice chats, to which only Czechs and Slovaks had access, because "he did not want the English to climb there." Gradually, I began to invite active community members I knew from the past, from Chaos Crew, moddb, and last but not least, my other YouTube subscribers to the group. In addition, I started contacting other people from the official Frictional Games server. I first sent a request for friendship to these people. Many of them have really become my friends. And I invited some of those who showed interest in the community to the HPL Crew group. To this day, this is often reproached and used as a weapon against me (but I will talk about that later). The group gradually grew to a historic high of 135 members as I left this server.

Chapter 4 - Karel's Crisis One of the people invited to HPL Crew was a young modder named Karel, a very impulsive personality with a limited ability to socialize. At HPL, Crew repeatedly provoked conflicts and was kicked from the group for this reason. Shortly afterwards, he founded a certain fascist server, which was joined by a headlesscyborg, me with my alternative account, and several other peoples from HPL Crew. We were led to join this group by the curiosity of what would happen there. To this day, Headlesscyborg claims that he only entered there because he wanted to take screenshots for a friend Sabatu, which decided to report this server. The server was actually reported and the result was a blocking of the server as well as the blocking of all accounts that were present on the server, including the headlesscyborg's. This, as the owner of HPL Crew, put him in a situation where this server would be closed after 2 weeks. On the same day, we started devising a contingency plan. Headlesscyborg asked me to create a server template for him that all HPL Crew members could move to. He himself continued to communicate with Discord support in an effort to unblock the account.

The same day we slept at night, Sabatu secretly set up his own server with the same name behind our backs, placed an invitation in the old group, and began transferring people to his server without our knowledge. The motivation for her behavior was more than clear: He wanted to have his own server and ignored our efforts to keep the old. The next day, half of the active community was transferred to the Sabatu's server, so with regard to the community, we decided to accept this situation. That day I first spoke in a voice chat only with headlesscyborg. He said, "The man was in a hurry to set up a new server." Then I spoke to Sabatu, who told me he had to do it because headlesscyborg told him that the old server was in danger of being shut down immediately. Then I went to the first voice chat again and talked to headlesscyborg. I told him what Sabatu had told me, and he replied that it wasn't true and that he had never said anything like that. Later in the evening we all met in a voice chat and I asked Sabatu why he lied to me and claimed that headlesscyborg had said something he had said not.

Sabatu began to make excuses and said that he had not told me anything like that in the sense that there was a risk that the old server would be shut down immediately. In addition, he urged us to delete the old server template, which we did. Although Sabatu's behavior didn't affect me and rather hurt the headlesscyborg, I was personally annoyed by Sabatu's hypocrisy and lying. Given that headlesscyborg was quite lax about this problem, and given that I was mainly concerned with the benefit of the community and that any crisis would not affect it, we accepted the new state of things in the hope that nothing would change and everything would be function as on the old server. For a while, it really worked that way.

To be continue...

Chapter 5 - Problematic development of the Castle Wackersberg Some time ago, I wrote an extensive documentary on this topic, which also contains a description of headlesscyborg's personality. I decided to update this document with additional information. These consist mainly in an attempt to look at the whole issue through the eyes of a headlesscyborg. I can send the original version of the document on request, who would be interested in comparing the two versions. Here is the updated version:

After writing this document, headlesscyborg wrote text to his blog on moddb, which is today already removed. To clarify the information he provided, I also wrote the following text in my blog, which contains original quotes from his blog.

Chapter 6 - The core of the conflict around Wackersberg (I recommend reading the Úvaha document and also my blog on moddb for a complete understanding of the whole problem) Headlesscyborg constantly declares that I am a manipulator who put enormous pressure on him throughout the development. In fact, it was that in the first half of the Wackersberg project, when development was relatively normal, there were a lot of things that he didn't like and kept quiet about (which he admits himself). But how could I have known when he was silent. Why didn't he say his opinion openly so we could agree? His usual sentence, which I heard many times, was: Ok, I like that. That won't be a problem. Yes, it is true that I urged him when he refused to keep his word and decided that he would do something different, as we agreed, thus undermining our common concept. Nevertheless, I tried to make concessions in such situations in order to accommodate him and to resolve the situation by compromise. But for a person with unstable emotions, there is no gray color, but either white or black.

Either everything or nothing, never anything in between. A big problem with headlesscyborg's personality is his background. In direct contact, he manifests himself more as a modest person, which, however, is the complete opposite of his true nature. It is obvious that he is complex, he is afraid to express his opinion openly, and when someone else expresses his opinion and he prefers to remain silent rather than say his opinion, he considers it wrong to himself. He refuses to admit this personal failure and rather throws responsibility at someone else so that he does not have to confront himself with reality. Then there were arguments from him that I was a manipulator. Finally, the last time we talked, he told me that he was a modder and I was just a poor man who considered himself a co-author of mods. This perfectly revealed what it is. Complexed and aggressive individual at the same time.

Chapter 7 - Continuation of the conflict after the release of Wackersberg After the release of Castle Wackersberg, Sabatu suggested doing something like a little secret mod. In the end, to be secret, he gave up on his own. I suggested that we think of it as Castle Wackersberg DLC. In the end, we agreed to combine our ideas and make a new mod. Headlesscyborg didn't like it from the beginning. His simplicity was indistinct at first, and it was difficult to explain to him that it was no longer his mod and that it would certainly not happen that we would discredit Wackersberg in any way. Logically: As the author of a story, I will not destroy the reputation of a story I wrote earlier. The development of the mod continued until the third level. However, headlesscyborg's pressure escalated. He began to suffer from rebuttable paranoid fears that, for example, I would make the main character Wackersberg a fool with everything that took place only in his head. He accused me of trying to destroy his 5 months of hard work on mod, which was nonsense, of course. We worked on mod that was no longer his, he had no copyright or moral rights to the mod story (I could rather talk about it), and yet we made concessions to him. We deleted most of the character names from the texts, but it wasn't good enough for him either. In the end, disgusted with the whole situation, we ended the development of the mode.

Chapter 8 - Changes in Relationships At first I thought our coexistence in HPL Crew might be possible, but the opposite was true. Sabatu, though he never openly wanted to admit it, was on the headlesscyborg's side from the beginning. Sabatu's big problem is that he lies a lot, but he can't tactically too intelligently, so it's not hard to uncover a lot of his lies. There were a number of ambiguous phrases on his part. Everything indicated that he himself was under a certain manipulative pressure, the source of which is not hard to imagine - headlesscyborg. I will present a very specific proof of this statement in the following chapter. Until then, we discussed all matters concerning the server together. Sabatu suddenly restricted alternate accounts on the server, which he could not explain clearly. Allegedly because of some alternate account, which, according to him, did nothing wrong, which honestly surprised me. A few days later, he restructured the entire server. He moved me and the headlesscyborg from the roles of admins to the roles of moderators (Gatherers). When I asked him about it, he said he did it because of some icons. I emphasize that it took him an estimated more than 5 seconds to give me this answer. Interesting, isn't it? Based on all the above events, including the conflict with headlesscyborg, I decided to end my activity at HPL Crew and together with 2 other people founded this server. It was very clear all the time that Sabatu was on the headlesscyborg side and was strongly influenced by it.

Chapter 9 - Problem with the alleged alternative account I have decided to devote a separate chapter to this problem, which is mentioned in the previous chapter, as it has a very interesting climax. As has already been said, the Sabatu suddenly and without consulting us decided to restrict alt accounts and couldn't explain it in any way. It was only some time after I left HPL Crew that I looked at Sabat's comments on the FG server, where he accused me of owning that alternative account, and that the leaving of HPL Crew people had stopped when the frenchhot was fired. If this is true, it is a coincidence, because in the moment when they fired me (which was supposedly before), I had all the messages sent to people a long time ago (what exactly this was about, I will get to in the next chapters) . That's when I understood what the comedy was supposed to mean because of the mysterious account. Sabatu thought from the beginning that the account was mine, so he de facto restricted alternative accounts at HPL Crew because of me. He played hypocritical theater with me the whole time, proving that he had been on Hedlesscyborg's side from the beginning. And since Sabatu is not primarily a paranoid personality like a headlesscyborg, I understand that the impulse was given to him by the headlesscyborg. This is called being impartial. And a few days ago, I learned the complete truth. Both of these people started posting some old screenshots to the Czech chat. On one of them was a removed user who was obviously suing hedlesscyborg about the texts I wrote in connection with the development of Wackersberg. Everything was clear to me then. That deleted account was the mysterious frenchhot. And in his paranoia, the headlesscyborg came to the conclusion that it was I who sued myself, manipulated the Sabatu, and it turned out the way it did.

Chapter 10 - Leaving HPL Crew and what followed immediately after Since I no longer felt good in an atmosphere of paranoia and hidden intrigue, I decided to end all my activities on the HPL Crew server and together with 2 other people founded a new server. One day I told Sabat in voice chat that I was leaving and that my presence at HPL Crew would only be symbolic. Together with Crimson, we started preparing a new server, which took us about 3 days. My detailed statement and the reason for establishing a new server is contained in the following document:

Purpose_of_the_new_server_EN.odt

25.06 KB

On the 3rd day we started the server and I started inviting my friends to the new server. They were mostly people from HPL Crew and my goal was to offer people another alternative server on which we could continue working together. I emphasize that on this first day I didn't tell anyone anything to leave the old server. Sabatu's and headlesscyborg's reaction was tumultuous. The cyborg accused me of trying to provoke drama, which was not true. Sabatu felt terribly affected, and although he did not want to openly admit it, he considered my actions as a betrayal. Paradoxically, headlesscyborg later stated that I had the right to set up my own server. There is no consensus between the two actors either. That's when I made my biggest and perhaps only mistake. Due to the disgusting behavior of the cyborg's and Sabatu's, who made me a villain and a trustee, I started recommending my friends to leave the old server the next day. It rarely happens to me that anger overwhelms me as it happened then. If someone reads this to whom I wrote this at the time, I sincerely apologize. I admit, I wanted to punish them with that, but I shouldn't have involve peoples from the community. My original idea was that an active community can run on 2 servers. However, cooperation would have to be mutual.

Chapter 11 - Lies or Mistakes? 1) Sabatu claims that I accused him and headlesscyborg of being responsible for the presence of a troll on HPL Crew. I never said or wrote anything like that. In the document Purpose of the new server, I only expressed concern about the fact that the server was made accesible to everyone and this carries a potential risk. It's true that I invited the troll, but I couldn't know. Nothing more. You can see for yourself. 2) Sabatu accuses me of not doing anything when that troll was on the server. At the same time, he knows very well that I was afk at the time and therefore couldn't do anything. So he deliberately lies. 3) Sabatu claims that I told people that HPL Crew is ending. It's not true. I never said anything like that. I just said that I personally end up on the server. 4) Sabatu claims that I have many folders with screenshots for more than 15 people from the community. It's not true. I used to have them, but only for one specific person. Currently, I was forced to introduce a new folder for Sabatu. I have nothing like that for anyone else. 5) The Sabatu goes so far in his lies that he told Wrecx that I have a folder for him too. The goal is clear. Manipulate people and pit them against me and the new group.

Chapter 12 - Allegations of unfair practices My activity on the Frictional Games server is constantly emphasized, which has already been discussed above. However, the whole matter is deliberately taken out of context and interpreted in as negative a light as possible. Their claim: Swankest sends invitations to this server in bulk. Fact: I sent friend requests to some people there. There were those among them whom I really befriended, and I then invited some of them to the group. It is true that moderator TiMan doesn't like this and is fundamentally against it. It is also true that I was banned there several times because of that. But I don't think it's a bad thing to send someone a friend request. It is also done on other servers, on moddb, on Steam, and no one solves it there either. In addition, Discord enables this option. Anyway, I never hurt anyone with my behavior, and the original HPL Crew grew from 50% on this. In addition, many new active people have established themselves from the invited, who can be of benefit to this community. I always took community issues first and always kept to it (except for one failure, which I described above), while Sabatu's main concern was to be the boss of the community. A community founded by a headlesscyborg, to whom the Sabatu took over quite unfairly group, and which I built 80% percent. Now I realize that I didn't do everything for the community, but mainly for Sabatu's ego.

Chapter 13 - A little closer about Sabatu I would like to emphasize that I know Sabatu very well, because I have worked closely with him for a year and a half. In addition, I spent the last six months with him practically every day in the voice chat. What to say at the beginning? I don't want to waste too much intellectual phrases, so I'll focus on a purely civilian description. Sabatu is a person who loves modding, is very creative as a modder and thanks to his efforts he has the ability to cross his own boundaries and constantly work on himself and improve. It is clearly a great benefit for this community in this regard. Although he doesn't seem too willing to help others, he sometimes tries to do so, which only serves him to honor.

If he cooperates with others, cooperation with him is generally very high quality. In terms of personality, however, it is what is called a hystericist (in modern terms a histrionic personality). In essence, he is not a very penetrating type and doesn't trust everyone to meet. That's why he tries to be overly polite and communicative. However, once he has confidence in a certain group, he creates an imaginary theatrical stage among these people. An impenetrable person becomes an extroverted person who tends to constantly pretend and be the center of attention of these peoples. He tends to openly demonstrate his homosexual orientation and make a number of often repetitive and sometimes not very tasteful jokes on this topic (Send me your dick pic!). Sadly, he tends to write such things on his group's channels as well, slandering the Community Center for dealing with shit in his chats. I am all the more sorry that I have the same sexual orientation and such behavior contributes to a negative view of our minority. His need for theatricality and performance literally knows no bounds. Because people like the Sabatu often find themselves in non-standard situations due to their nature, they often deal with it by lying and manipulating it. Lying is very typical of this type of people. The tendency to get along with people at all costs, even at the cost of lying, is more than obvious. This indicates superficial emotivity. The second problem of his nature is his ego. He is very selfish, he thinks only of himself and other people only if it brings him some profit. He's the type of person who can only be brave behind a keyboard. Otherwise, he is not brave at all, quite the contrary. Another of his problems is the limited ability of theoretical thinking, when he draws too fast conclusions based on certain facts. He solves such situations primarily pragmatically, but worse on an intellectual level. Proof of this is Chapter 11 - Lies or Mistakes? Another proof is his inclination towards hedlesscyborg in our unfortunate conflict regarding Wackersberg. He who is in some way more important to him is automatically right, and he defends his attitude at all costs, even at the cost of behaving immorally. Due to his egoism, morality is not the most important thing in his life. He lacks insight into these negative tendencies of his nature, because he always tries to rationalize his behavior. On the contrary, a positive aspect of his personality is a very good memory, so he is able to memorize a large amount of information and can sometimes work very effectively with this information.

This is all for today. I explained the main problems of the HPL incident as best I could. Tomorrow I will focus on various details that I forgot to mention today.

Chapter 14 - After creating the Community Center server Old events were discussed in the channels for a few more days. Because the Sabatu began to behave rather recklessly and slander me openly, I, for the first time, openly declared the truth that during the internal conflict that took place in the HPL Crew, the Sabatu behaved tendentiously, hypocritically, and influenced himself. I thought that the emotions would gradually subside and in short, we would each go our own way. In reality, however, a period of deliberation and provocation began. The first happened before I left HPL Crew. In order to take revenge on me, Headlesscyborg made a new update to our Castle Wackersberg mod, in which he changed the texts to separate this mod from a set of mods called the Bavarian Saga. A really pathetic revenge, which made me laugh and was just embarrassed.

Chapter 15 - Pathetic and Hate speech Since I left HPL Crew, the Sabatu, with the generous support of headlesscyborg, has launched an annoying campaign against me and the new server. The paradox is that Sabatu and I didn't really do anything wrong. My biggest fault was that I allowed myself, along with other friends, to set up a new server, endangering Sabatu's status as the head of an active community. His way of thinking seems to me to be like a king whose part of the country has decided to declare independence, and he has prevented it by all means because he doesn't want to lose part of his territory. But how can it be explained to an amoral, selfish and emotionally superficial person that I have the right to such behavior, because we live in a free world and everyone can set up as many servers as they want. My actions are still perceived by Sabatu as a betrayal, which can be evidenced by screenshots of his speeches. In any case, his speeches often contain false, semi-true and information taken out of context, the purposeful interpretation of which aims to sound as negative as possible.

Chapter 16 - Strange leavings of members of this server It's most suspicious when 6 people leave one day, 5 next day and 3 another next day. It was clear to me that HPL Crew was behind this, I just had no evidence. I wouldn't even mind persuading those people to move over to them, because at least they would stay part of an active community. However, this turned out to be a mistake, so I wondered if anyone was sending these people warning messages about our server. It was only a few weeks later that I obtained clear evidence from one of the people who had received such a message. I know headlesscyborg's writing style very well and, as I said here, he's a troll, so I'm sure it's him. In addition, the person who wrote it has very accurate information about me. That I have no direct evidence? The few indirect ones are ample for me, and moreover, I was accused without evidence at HPL Crew of owning an allegedly alternative account, which, in Sabatu's words, "did nothing wrong". See Chapter 9 for details of this incident.

Chapter 17 - "Return to Home" incident Sometime about half a year ago, I agreed with a beginning modder who was a member of the HPL Crew to create a short mod that was to fall within the universe of the Bavarian Saga. Sabatu and Headlesscyborg knew about it and didn't protest. However, the modder left the group and the mod remained unfinished. So I asked Sabatu and Headlesscyborg to help me finish the mod. Sabbath had to adjust Level 1 and 2 and headlesscyborg had to add another level. However, both didn't keep their word, so the mod remained unfinished until recently. After the release of the mod, Sabatu began to write various comments to moddb page of this mod, and then together with Headlesscyborg, they wrote "objective" reviews. I honestly don't care that they gave the mode 1/10 and 2/10. And if they limited themselves in reviews to really constructive criticism and forgave offensive behaviour, everything was ok. I deliberately did not allow their reviews or comments to be removed, because it is their shame, not mine. Interestingly, a few days later Headlesscyborg changed the rating from 2/10 to 1/10, which was apparently revenge for the incident described in the following chapter. Review objectivity guaranteed. I would be quite interested in what the rating modewould be if we were still friends. And another thing: If they had been fair and finished the mod as they promised, the mod looked much better today.

Chapter 18 - „The Joseq Incident“ The day before the reviews discussed in the previous chapter were published, Joseq was accepted to join into the group on the proposal of another member of the group. Joseq used to be a friend of mine who belongs to a close circle of Czech HPL Crew members around Sabatu. He is an intelligent and inherently decent person, but he isn't very punchy and tends to adapt to life circumstances at all costs to make life as comfortable as possible. As a result, is easy for him to influence to a "stronger majority". In this case, he chose Sabatu's side. I thought he would be neutral at least in our group, but that was my big mistake. Quite unexpectedly, he published in our group images of the offensive reviews of Sabatu and Headlesscyborg, which are discussed in the previous chapter. And he wrote: "Nice reviews." It was clear that this was a provocation. In addition, at the same time, they made fun of these reviews on HPL Crew (Sabatu, Headlesscyborg, Joseq). That's why I deleted both pictures and decided to ban Joseq. When I accepted him into the group, I told him that I no longer wanted to dig through the past (or I didn't want to then because I hoped HPL Crew would give up its actions against this server) and I didn't want us to ever talk about it again.. And he then deliberately did what is described above.

In addition, he committed another rather disgusting thing, which will be discussed in the next chapter. Anyway, after deleting the picture and banning Joseq, Sabatu literally unleashed the hell on on HPL Crew, making me the biggest possible thug and tyrant. Consider: So at first they make fun of those reviews, which clearly indicates their malice, and when I defend myself against it, I'm the worst again. Sabatu should really work on his hypocritical tactics, because in this way he reveals himself as a social primitive. It's really sad to see a server where his manager makes an idiot out of himself. It reminds me a bit of sicialism, when similar existences worked in leading positions and it didn't matter what they knew or how they behaved, only class affiliation was important.

Here's screen where they openly make fun of these reviews (just before I deleted the screenshots from our channel and then banned joseq).

Chapter 19 - Incident with photos This incident took place two days ago and was the imaginary last drop for me, thanks to which my cup of patience overflowed. So far, I've been passive against attacks and intrigues by HPL Crew, but this was too much. At HPL Crew, they posted 2 photos of one of the members of our group in the main chat, without his permission, with the aim of harming him. It is true that this man used to curse Sabatu, and I would understand if they cursed him on HPL Crew as well, but publishing private photos from Facebook is a bit too much. Wondering how they got those photos? Heedlesscyborg's best friend vasik2, who also belongs to the circle of Czech fans around Sabatu, established a false profile, which penetrated the Stalker fan community, whose member is also the person whose photos were published. There he pretended to be a friend of the person in question, and his friend directed vasik2 to the relevant profile, from which he apparently obtained a link to Facebook. He then downloaded photos from Facebook, which then placed Sabatu to main chat. To top it all off, Joseq, the hero of the last chapter, sent to man (which belongs the photos) provocatively screenshot from HPL Crew, which shows the published photos. It was a huge shock to the person in question. Thus, such dirty practices are used by HPL Crew members to harm another server and its members.

Here is proof, Sabatu's personal screenshot.

With regard to the person in question, I blacked out the photos.

Chapter 20 - Sabatu's ridiculous revenge for this channel On the same day that this new channel was established, the Sabatu decided to take revenge, in the most ridiculous and cringe way. He announced a remake of mod's on moddb, on which he collaborated with me. The texts will reportedly be reduced and the Bavarian saga will cease to exist. He even openly admits to it. Anyway, it makes me laugh. All the more so as I will make sure that the original texts will not be lost from the world, so that the Bavarian saga will continue to exist. His ridiculous revenge will for to nothing.

Chapter 21 - Conclusion The HPL Crew crisis, which began with petty disputes over the development of the Castle Wackersberg, has reached a point where it has turned into a regular war. I repeat that I didn't want this war and only the constant and recurring aggression by the members of the HPL Crew forced me to establish this channel. Just as they use their server as a tool of aggression, I decided to use this channel as a tool to defend against their aggression. These days we are dealing with another incident caused by people from HPL Crew, but I cannot provide details at the request of the owner of this server. My intention was only to leave the server, where I did not feel good in an atmosphere of distrust and paranoia and together with my friends build a new background for our activities. And I think we did this. I am sorry that many people in the community have been affected by this conflict. Back at HPL Crew, I tried to keep our personal conflicts out of the peoples. I have been silent here in new server for a long time, enduring terror in the hope that every aggression is the last and that perhaps HPL Crew will finally give us peace so that this community is not constantly destroyed by conflict. And that's it. Sometimes one says to yourself: Isn't this all absurd? We are waging a senseless war in this community. But what are we fighting for here? Are any Discord servers really worth it? I will hope that one day the situation will calm down and peace will prevail. At this point, I'm done with the HPL Crew crisis. I don't want to dig into that shit anymore. I'm starting to be sick from all of this. From now: I won't talk more about these things in public unless the aggression by HPL Crew will continue in future. I just want peace and I think the whole community does too. This channel will continue to exist in case there will be further attacks by HPL Crew, which will be presented and analyzed here. Thanks to everyone who managed to read the whole long story to the end. I apologize to everyone else for being forced to establish this channel, because it is impossible to give way to evil indefinitely, and sometimes it is necessary to defend against evil. I tried to describe everything exactly according to the truth, how things really happened. It's possible that I forgot something. But I certainly didn't forget anything important that is important for understanding the essence of the whole problem. That is all.
